Play of Love, Romance and Wedding is too Much for John Pulse; He Elopes

"The Only Girl," played at the Macdonough theater in Oakland this week, fairly bubles with love.

John Pulse, 21 and Miss Helen Standiford a high school student saw the play. He liked it.

He marveled at the romance — the elopement — the cedding. It was great.

Why couldn't he be like the lucky fellow in the play?

He turned to the young lady who was leaning against his shoulder and whispered something in her ear.

She dropped her program, fixed her hat and together they slipped from the theater.

They would not tarry in Oakland they would go to San Francisco.

At the county clerk's office in the big metropolis across the bay the girl gave her name as Helen Standiford, 18.

With the license in his pocket and a smile on his face Pulse called Richmond on a public telephone.

"Yes, we're married," he remarked, "left the auto in Oakland, leaving immediately for San Jose."

Mrs. Frank Standiford, mother of the eloping girl was flabergasted. Upon regaining her composure she notified Charles and Harry Pulse, of the Pulse grocery store. They were dumfounded and for several seconds lost their speech.

But they later smiled. One was just entering the simple ways of married life while the other had just returned from a honeymoon.

Both young people were forgiven by their relatives following a meeting at the Standiford home, 458 Fifth street last evening.

Miss Helen Standiford is a junior at the Richmond Union high school, and sister of Night Police Sergeant Frank Standiford and Miss Iva Standiford.

A telegram was dispatched for Lynchburg, Ohio, telling M. B. Pulse, father of the youthful eloper what had happened.

Independent Democratic — Official Paper of City of Richmond

WAR'S AFTERMATH

In a paper on the problem of anti-dumping legislation, Henry C. Emery, former chairman of the United States tariff board, declared before the national foreign convention in New Orleans recently that selling goods in one market cheaper than another was economically sound and that the United States should not hastily adopt any anti-dumping policy which might lead other nations to retaliate against the American foreign trade in manufactures, many of which are sold cheaper abroad than at home. He said:

"The real danger which threatens us after the European war is not that European manufacturers will sell goods in our market below their own cost of production but that they will sell goods below our cost at home."

Discussing the proposal of the Secretary of Commerce Redfield to combat dumping of foreign merchandise in the American market by a law holding such practice to be "unfair competition," Mr. Emery said:

"What about our own position in regard to selling surplus products abroad? Do we wish to help start a movement as yet confined to a few sparsely settled colonies (Canada, Australia, etc.) which will become the practice of our leading competitors? What would be the position of our own export trade if all countries should adopt the principle that goods cannot be sold in foreign markets for less than the established price of the domestic market? We are in a peculiar position. In general, our domestic prices are relatively so high that dumping in our market is not the situation by offering his goods at his regular home prices. On the other hand, prices in foreign markets are so low that the American exporter is largely driven by the sheer force of international competition to sell his surplus at some reduction. For this reason, I believe the movement for an anti-dumping law may prove dangerous to American exporters.

"Is the real problem to stop practices based on the immoral motives of foreigners or to protect ourselves against practices injurious to us, whether immoral or moral? If recent schemes as to duming legislation do not meet the issues, what does? I think the answer is to be found in the proposition for a flexible tariff."

Root may have had and inkling of what would happen at the New York republican convention when he declined to permit the use of his name as a presidential candidate.

GERMANY LOSES COLONIES

London dispatches announce the final conquest of the German protectorate of Kamerun by Franco-British forces, after a year's struggle. This is the third largest colony of Germany, both in area and population. Its capture completes the conquest of the great colonial empire Bismark built up, against his own judgment, but in response to German sentiment created by the universities. There were two arguments in favor of colonial expansion, one being to prevent the German emigrants, who numbered 2,500,000 between 1871 and 1901, being lost to the empire, and the other to find a source of raw material and also additional markets. The acquisition of the African colonies was made easy by Gladstone's carelessness. Germany Southwest Africa, German Southeast Africa and New Guinea were acquired in 1884 and the Marshall Islands were got the next year. The "99-year-lease" on Gioa-Chau was acquired in 1897 and the Caloine, Palaos and Marianne Islands came under the empire in 1899.

Colonial management was poor until Dernberg's administration and the only protectorate that has been self-sustaining is that of Togo. Much of the expense of the navy might properly be charged up to the colonies. The suppression of insurrections made a navy necessary. The defense of the colonies during the present war was impossible, owing to the tying up of the German navy. Although the population of German dependencies in 1913 was 12,229,400, there were only 24,000 whites in the number. The Germans had gone in greater number to other countries and had built up much greater trade in South America than in other crown colonies. It is questionable whether the loss of the colonies will be regarded as much of a deprivation. But with the progress of science, Africa may be made habitable to Europeans and become one of the richest parts of the earth. As we have heretofore suggested, alterations in the map of Africa will be one of the principal duties of peace commissioners, if the great war results decisively, one way or the other.

FUTILITY OF AIR RAIDS

The experience of the present war has demonstrated pretty clearly that the value of aircraft for military purposes is limited almost entirely to scouting operations. In taking observation of enemy positions the birdman has proved of tremendous advantage to his army, but as an agency for direct attack on the enemy he has been almost useless.

"Frightfulness" is about all that has been accomplished by air raids during this struggle, and "frightfulness" does not win wars. It only spurs the nation against which it is used to more desperate determination to win at all hazards. There is yet to appear the first sign of weakening on the part of either England or France, the chief victims of Zeppelin raids, due to any terror inspired in the people by those raids.

The sum of the lives taken in all the air raids since the war began is less than the number of those who have fallen in any one of a hundred outpost skirmishes in France, Belgium or Poland, and a large percentage of those killed in such raids have been women, children and other non-combatants. Why, in the face of these facts, raids by Zeppelins and aeroplanes on cities of the enemy continue is one of the mysteries of the war.

NOTES FROM THE PLAYHOUSES

ORPHEUM THEATRE (Oakland)

General Pasquala Orosco, the Villaista general who was recently trapped by the Carranza forces and killed in Mexico, was a few years ago an osler to a party of engineers of which Frederick Hand, the leading man in "The Passion Play of Washington Square," was a member.

Mr. Hand, who is now at the Oakland Orpheum in the strangely named play, told of Orosco when news was received of his death.

"It was soon after my stage debut," said the actor. "I had been touring the west with Charles B. Hanford in Shakespearian repertoire, and I left the company at El Paso because I was sick. I knew something of civil engineering and when an opportunity presented itself to me to go into Old Mexico I thought it was a good chance for me to strengthen up after my convalescence. There was a spice of danger in the venture as our party was succeeding another that had been massacred by the Yaqui Indians.

"I remember Orosco very well as our osler. He did not seem at all antagonistic to us but the Mexicans used to listen to him very intently and he seemed to be some sort of a leader among them. He was very friendly with Villa at that time and Villa very often visited him in our camp. Villa was another of those Mexicans who seemed to possess a power among his own people, but he was no particular trouble to us. We were the locating engineers who laid out the Chihuahua and North Western railroad and we made our headquarters at the little town of Madera, which was the original hotbed of revolution in Mexico, and I believe all the recent trouble in Mexico really started from that place."

Like most of the members of the cast of "The Passion Play of Washington Square," Mr. Hand is making his vaudeville debut. He is from the legitimate end and is busy renewing acquaintances on his present tour. He has not visited the west since he was with Florence Roberts in "The Strength of the Weak."

PANTAGES THEATRE (Oakland)

Pantages big "Laughable Show" is proving the big hit of the season this week at the Oakland show house. From the time Greenlee and Drayton start the big program of mirth with their German and their dancing to the time Arthur Lavine and his merrymakers finish "From Coney Island to the North Pole in a gale of merriment, the fun is fast and furious. Manager Pantages robbed himself of some of the big headline acts of other bills to make up this big show, and that the public recognizes it is shown by the crowded houses this week.

Arthur Lavine is a clever comedian, and, with his pretty girls, gorgeous scenery, bright costumes and snappy music—to say nothing of "Jennie" the educated automobiling pig, has an act as full of laughs as it is of surprises, and there are many of these, almost too many to enumerate.

The Valerie Sisters add to the frolic with a series of funny songs, all the way from Hebrew comedy to Coon shouting and all rendered in a decidedly "different" way.

Then there are Greenlee and Drayton, the German blackface comedians with lively dances and Hanlon and Clifton, in a musical-acrobatic surprise.

Raymond and Bain have a charming and very funny bit in "Locked Out," a little story of a couple who are out in the dark—with songs to while the long hours before the gray dawn, a dance or so, and a gray dawn, a dance or so, and a

Walter James, the Merry Idler recites, sings and comedies—mostly he comedies, for that's what is making him famous.

An installment of "The Girl and the Game" with more thrilling adventures, rounds out the bill. Next week will see "The Office Girl," one of the biggest features of vaudeville in America.

The lawyers are the ones who insist that Mr. Brandeis has not the confidence of the people kicking. You know that story about an honest lawyer.

Possibly it's the strong rivalry of "canned" music that's made the manufacturers of musical instruments start a nation-wide get-to-gether movement.

Those opposed to preparedness should stop long enough to consider the cost to England of the present war.

MONSTER CELEBRATION IS PLANNED BY CHAMBER OF COMMERCE FOR JULY 4TH

At the meetnig of the board of directors of the Richmond Chamber of Commerce last evening many matters of interest were discussed that were for the general benefit of Richmond.

Dr. M. F. Underwood, one of the representatives of the chamber, who attended the Inland Waterways Congress which was recently held in San Francisco, gave an interesting report of the proceedings of that body. Fred S. Newsom, member of the committee to look into the matter of the auto ferry service between Richmond and San Francisco was supplemented in his report by President Owens who stated that such service could be secured if the company contemplating putting on such service could be shown that it would be a paying investment.

The matter of the Fourth of July celebration to be held in Richmond this year was freely discussed by all of the members of the board which resulted in the secretary being instructed to address a letter to the city council asking them to call a general mass meeting for March 16th at which time it is intended to have all the necessary committees appointed and plans outlined for the biggest celebration ever held in Contra Costa county.

The matter of increasing the membership of the chamber was discussed, and each member of the board pledged himself to bring in ten new members by the next meeting night, so if you are buttonholed by any of these enthusiastic boosters just sign the application slip and do now what you're going to do later on anyway.

The matter of factory sites was headed by President Owens and the board was given in detail the work that has thus far been accomplished by its officers. Every indication is favorable for the securing of the two factories that are now being negotiated with.

When matters of finance were discussed President Owens voluntarily gave another month's rent for the chamber's headquarters free.

A communication was received from the Sierra club of San Francisco, relative to a bill now pending in congress providing for a national park service, and one for an appropriation for Yosemite National park for at least $300,000. The communication requested that the Richmond Chamber of Commerce adopt a resolution endorsing these bills and forward such resolution to each of California's representatives in congress. The secretary was instructed to prepare such resolution and submit them at the next meeting of the board of directors.

Director Lane addressed the board on the needs of a new post office building in Richmond. He advocated immediate steps being taken to that end. The subject was enthusiastically discussed by the board and Mr. Lane was appointed a committee of one to bring the matter to the attention of the city council and request that a set of resolutions be adopted by them and forwarded to Representative Charles F. Curry at Washington.

The membership meeting of the chamber which will be held at the Lincoln school auditorium on Friday evening promises to be a monster affair. The public generally is invited to attend, as matters of deep interest to the entire city will be discussed.

GLASS OF SALTS CLEANS KIDNEYS

If your Back is aching or Bladder bothers, drink lots of water and eat less meat.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

KEY TO ENIGMA OF WORLD WAR OFFERED BY GERMAN PROFESSOR

DR. FRANZ OPPENHEIMER

The motive of war is class larceny. Lasting peace will not come until governments cease to be instrumentalities of theft.

These are the major conclusions of a German professor, Franz Oppenheimer, M. D., Ph. D. of the University of Berlin, who outlined, as early as 1908, the interplay of forces which has thrown Europe into a titanic struggle.

His book, Die Staat (The State) traces the origin of government and finds that in all of its advanced forms it resulted from the conquest of an agricultural people by roving tribes of freebooters.

The freebooter at first murdered and robbed his vanquished foe, says the author, but later discovered that, by letting him live and work, he could steal not the surplus of a single year, but the surplus of every year's work.

Modern government was born when the first savage invader enslaved his victim instead of killing him.

Thus the genesis of the state is theft, he adds. Every government is a class government. The most convenient modern means for class exploitation is the ownership of land and the collection of ground rent by a favored class.

Racial differences between conquerors and conquered disappear after a few generations and the upper class learns to rule by seeming to be the protector. Fears of invasion are festered, armies and armaments maintained and international hate engendered as a means of keeping the worker's mind from his own wrongs. Periodically wars result from this.

War does not satisfy any inborn human craving, according to Oppenheimer. It is merely an incident of legal theft. He also refutes the theory that nations are forced to expand by lack of land for the sustenance of growing populations. He demonstrates by figures that Germany has land enough for much more than her population, if speculative holding of idle lands were ended.

Oppenheimer does not predict the fall of the state, but the changing of its function from spoilation to justice. One feature of this change must be equal sharing in the benefits arising from land ownership He mentions an American, Henry George, as among those who have laid the foundation for the future state.

ONE SPOONFUL GIVES ASTONISHING RESULTS

Richmond residents are astonished at the QUICK results from the simple mixture of buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., known as Adler-i-ka. ONE SPOONFUL of Adler-i-ka relieves almost ANY CASE of constipation, sour or gassy stomach. ONE MINUTE after you take it, the gases rumble and pass out. C. E. Niedecker, druggist.

STOP CATARRH! OPEN NOSTRILS AND HEAD

Says Cream Applied in Nostrils Relieves Head-Colds at Once.

If your nostrils are clogged and your head is stuffed and you can't breathe freely because of a cold or catarrh, just get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Baim at any drug store. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream into your nostrils and let it penetrate through every air passage of your head, soothing and healing the inflamed, swollen mucous membrane and you get instant relief.

Ah! how good it feels. Your nostrils are open, your head is clear, no more hawking, snuffing, blowing; no more headache, dryness or struggling for breath. Ely's Cream Balm is just what sufferers from head colds and catarrh need. It's a delight.

MAY PROVE FATAL

When Will Richmond People Learn the Importance of It?

Backache is only a simple thing at first;

But if you find 'tis from the kidneys;

That serious kidney troubles may follow;

That dropsy or Bright's disease may be the fatal end,

You will be glad to know the following experience.

'Tis the statement of a Richmond citizen.

Philomena M. Brier, 511 Ninth St., Richmond, says: "Dropsy, which was shown by swellings of my limbs, shortness of breath and fluttering of my heart was my most serious trouble. I suffered from severe attacks of backache, my head ached often and I had dizzy spells and a tired, worn-out feeling. Since I heard about Doan's Kidney Pills, I have used them whenever these attacks have come on me and in a short time they have fixed me up all right."

Price 50¢, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Philomena Brier had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

Made from the right crude

More than forty years' experience has taught us which crudes make high-grade efficient lubricants. None but the most suitable are chosen for the manufacture of Zerolene. The fact that Zerolene has made good in actual service, and in all sizes and types of motors, proves that it is made of the right crude, and made right.

ECONOMIC PRECAUTION WILL BE USED BY SOCIAL SERVICE BUREAU

The wise and helpful management of charity has always been a difficult problem and of recent years many workers and thinkers have given it a great deal of attention. The best of all gifts are those which are the result of personal affection guided by special knowledge, but much of the most pressing need lies quite outside of the lines of personal interest and knowledge and organized systematically managed charity seems to be the only practicable way of meeting such needs.

The special effort of Richmond to deal with this problem or rather with the organized effort to solve it in anything like a scientific way, began with the formation of the Social Service Bureau some fifteen months ago.

With the initial work of organizing completed, steps were at once taken to so systemitize the work that personal supervision could be given the cases that were to be cared for by the bureau. To do this the entire city was divided into districts with a special chairman for each district and two general chairmen, one for the west side and one for the east side of the city.

For the first few months the bureau was supported entirely by voluntary contributations. A campaign was made for membership and many came to the rescue of our needy by contributing a regular sum each month.

From the beginning the bureau proved its worth to our city. This was soon recognized by our city council with the result that a monthly allowance was made from the city's funds thus making it the city's one general, non-racial, non-sectrian benevolent institution.

The objects constantly kept in view by the bureau are: Positively, such an administration of the voluntary gifts of the charitable and of the public funds as would build up rather than drag down, and would as speedily as possible lift the recipients out of the condition which called for such assistance; negatively, to get rid, so far as possible, of the evils of duplication and the encouragement of pauperism which so often accompany the unwise administration of charity.

Much of the time and attention of the bureau has gone to the development of constructive movements in social work, efforts which makes for the prevention rather than the cure of poverty, disease and crime and which are therefore, more fundamental than the relieving of poverty, curing of disease or the punishment of offenders.

Systemitized as the work of the bureau is, it is easy to get a clear insight into the cause of the trouble. The first consideration in each case that appeals to the bureau is the real welfare of the persons concerned. A thorough investigation is made of each applicant for assistance and families regularly aided are visited frequently. The bureau takes the stand that no financial aid should be given when it obviously encourages laziness, drunkenness or immorality.

The bureau keeps thorough systematic records including the name, address and history of applicant, a report of the investigation made and a record of all relief given. This information is entirely private and is only given out to persons entitled to have it.

From the records statistics may be compiled and an inventory taken of the work accomplished. Just a few figures will give some indications of what the work represents in human values.

Number of families aided during 1915 were 97.

Number of mailies aided more than once were 30.

Number of persons aided were 410.

Number of families aided more than once were 119.

Special attention has been given to families with children, for the same causes which lead to poverty often manifest themselves in truancy and juvenile delinquency. To prevent this, care is taken to see that suitable clothing and good shoes are provided for the children as well as proper nourishment.

The bureau has in mind, naturally, many things which it has not been able to accomplish during the past year. One of the most important is the creation of a hospital fund whereby preventative medical aid for school children will be possible, such as operations for adenoids, removal of tonsils, physical examinations and the furnishing of glasses. Plans are already under way to provide sufficient funds for placing a little child now a cripple in a hospital where it will be given an opportunity to at least try for its health and to use its own words, "walk like other children."

That the Social Service Bureau was never more urgently in need of funds than it is at the present time must be apparent to any one who considers the city's needy in connection with current economic and climatic conditions. There is an unprecedented demand for food and fuel to supply the many who have been made destitute through no fault of their own. The winter rains bring a scarcity of employment and as the result the slender income of the bureau has, by no means, met the demands upon it. Despite the fact that there are no paid officers, that every dollar contributed to the organization goes directly into the treasury and that a creditable sum was saved during the previous months, yet all this was not sufficient to cover the necessary expenses of the winter months.

Because of these conditions the most rigid economy is obliged to be used and many lines of work abandoned entirely.

But those who have worked so faithfully in the interest of humanity during the past year are more than gratified at the success and encouragement which they have received. They believe and they have reason to believe the opinion general, that all emphasis and effort should be directed toward prevention rather than cure and there should develop in our midst a stronger feeling of democracy and community interest. The old idea of charity as affording a means of self-satisfaction to the giver should make way for the new conception of social and civic betterment.

AT RICHMOND THEATRE

The story of "Mice and Men" showing at the Richmond theater tonight centers about Peggy, a foundling who has been adopted by a philosopher with the idea of marrying her if she proves to develop into the sort of girl that he has pictured as his ideal. This student, Mark Embury, has decided that the woman of the present generation are not desirable wives and that only by training one according to his own views can he ever hope to marry a girl that will prove companionable. So Peggy has been taken from The Foundling Home and trained in the way she should go. But the philosopher's best-laid plans, like all those of mice and men, go badly awry. For there appears on the scene his nephew, a soldier, who returns from the war a hero.

Youth calls to youth, and Peggy finds herself in the distressing dilemma of choosing between grateful appreciation and the importunate wooing of her impetuous soldier. It is in the presentation of the girl's mental sufferings as she is born between the conflicting emotions that Miss Clark does her best work, though she is irresistible charming in her interpretation of the girl as she gradually develops into beautiful maturity under the careful guidance of her doting guardian. It is safe to say that in her love scenes with Captain George Lovell, Miss Clark captures more than the single heart of her screen lover. She is the bewitching coquette at her very best.

In support of Miss Clark there appear such well-known players as Marshall Neilan, Charles Waldron, Clarence Hanlyside and Robert Conville.

In addition to this big feature with Miss Marguerite Clark as star will be an interesting Pathe news of Current events and a Phunphilm comedy entitled "Ragtime Snapshots."

SEE NEW YORK TAKEN, WASHINGTON SACKED, IN GREATEST OF WAR FILMS.

HORRORS OF WAR SHOWN IN "BATTLE CRY OF PEACE"

"The Battle Cry of Peace," a motion picture which comes to the Regent theater for an exclusive engagement Friday and Saturday, is said to be the most sensational film production ever shown in this country. It has been running for three months at the Vitagraph theater, New York, to crowded houses.

It portrays the defenseless condition of our country, the consequences to which this condition may lead, and the way to avoid these consequences. It shows the city of New York being attacked by a powerful foreign foe.

The New York American, in speaking of this picture, said: "It is the greatest war drama ever filmed," and the New York Journal said: "It is the 'Uncle Tom's Cabin' of pictures."

Major General Leonard Wood in "The Battle Cry of Peace" says: "To American fathers and mothers—It is murder for you to send your boys to war untrained when it is possible to train them."

A special matinee for school children Friday at 3:30 p. m. children 10¢, adults 20¢ Saturday matinee 1:30 and 3:30 p. m. Nights all seats 20¢. First show 7:45, second show 8:50 p. m.

SHELL COMPANY IS HAMPERED BY MATERIALS

(Special to Record-Herald)

MARTINEZ, March 2.—The inability of the railroads to handle the freight business, due to the lack of cars has been felt for several weeks at the works of the Shell company in Martinez and the situation instead of improving is growing more critical. Materials, chiefly structural steel which should come to the works by rail is being loaded on the river steamers in Oakland and shipped to the C. T. docks here whence it is hauled to the scene of building operations.

The extra loading and unloading of the material amounts to a considerable sum in a short time but the delay is more costly than the extra hauling cost. The steamer "Captain Webber" brought five tons of structural steel to Martinez for the Shell on Tuesday.
